Bright School Program Temporary Suspension of Technical Assistance Program

The Energy Commission is temporarily suspending technical assistance provided under the Bright School Program (BSP). Due to workload constraints associated with American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) funds, technical assistance will not be offered to BSP applicants after December 3, 2009.

Typically, the technical assistance program has provided energy audits to K-12 schools to identify energy saving recommendations or reviews of energy proposals and designs.

Technical assistance will continue to be conducted for ARRA related activities.

Who does this affect?

Publicly funded California K-12 school districts and non-profit K-12 schools.
